Four-Leaf Clover.

A fourleaved clover,
the wide world over,
Is a herald of luck that is good,
I send it to you;

Accept it in lieu
Of the letter I'd write
if I could.

How a Famous Hymn was Written

As Tennyson's nurse was sitting one day at his bedside, sharing to a degree the general anxiety about the patient, she said to him suddenly: "You have written a great many poems, sir, but I have never heard anybody say that there is a hymn among them all. I wish, sir, you would write a hymn while you are lying on your sick-bed. It might help and comfort many a poor sufferer."

The next morning, when the nurse had taken her quiet place at the bedside, the poet handed her a scrap of paper, saying, "Here is the hymn you wished me to write."

She took it from his hands with expressions of gratified thanks. It proved to be "Crossing the Bar," the poem that was sung in Westminster Abbey at Tennyson's funeral, and which has touched so many hearts.—Evening Mail.

Flower in the Crannies Wall,
I pluck you out of the Crannies,
I hold you here, root and
all, in my hand,
Little flower - but if I could understand.

What you are, root and
all, and all in all,
I should know what
God and Man is.

— Tennyson
